URGES FEWER COURT DELAYS

JUDGE JOHN M. DAWSON ANNOUNCES NEW RULE.

REPRIMANDS LAWYERS

Should Be Present In Court, He Insists.—Action Taken in Several Minor Cases.

Beginning at the next term of the Nodaway County Circuit Court, there will be fewer delays due to absence of attorneys, Judge John M. Dawson warned members of the bar this morning.

There was no case ready for trial this morning, and it was discovered also that one which had been set for tomorrow could not be tried then. Counsel in the latter case pleaded that it had been set for trial without his being present.

"A new rule will be adopted at the next term of court," Judge Dawson announced. "When these cases are called, they will be set for trial whether the lawyers are here or not. The place of attorneys during a term of court is in the courtroom.

"It costs about $100 a day to run this court," the judge said, continuing his reprimand. "Every hour we wait while attorneys are notified costs money. This jury costs $72 a day, and they just hang around day after day with nothing to do."

A Call System Suggested.

Attorney C. E. Stilwell agreed with the court that too little was accomplished but protested that attorneys could not afford to sit idle in the courtroom during a long trial which does not concern them, on the chance that it might end suddenly and other cases be called. He suggested some system to notify attorneys when a case is finished.

Judge Dawson sympathized with the attorney's attitude but insisted that when they left the courtroom they did so at their own peril.

"We lose too much time waiting on the convenience of attorneys," he added, firmly. He then declared a recess until 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Aesdale Suit Settled.

After a jury had been selected and the plaintiff, W. T. Aesdale of Burlington Junction, had testified about an account suit brought against James O. Stafford, the case was settled by agreement this afternoon for $249, the full amount sued for by Mr. Aesdale. The case came to circuit court on an appeal from justice court. The jury on this case was composed of J. Ed Costello, John Brand, Walter Coleman, G. W. Cain, John Greeley, Vern Hensen, Clyde Hoshor, Alva Heflin, F. C. Wyman, Roy Bridgewater, Fred Ager, John A. Martin.

The petit jury was excused this afternoon until Thursday morning after judgment was taken in the Aesdale-Stafford case.

Liquor Violator to Jail.

Charley Bird, who was fined $200 yesterday on a liquor charge, was committed to the county jail when he was unable to pay his fine.

Donald Wilson, who was taken to jail yesterday for failing to pay his fine when his stay of execution expired, was released today when his father paid his fine of $200, imposed for violating the liquor law. Wilson was fined at the last term of court and a stay of execution was granted at that time.

Ed Cain, who also was granted a stay of execution at the last term to pay a fine of $25 for gaming, was also committed to jail, as the stay had expired. Pearl Webb, also fined for gaming, paid part of his fine in court.

The Barnard State Bank yesterday was given a judgment of $1,624, with interest at 7 per cent and an attorney fee of $156.50, in its suit against Ida A. Thompson and others, on note.

Divorce Case Motions Filed.

Mrs. Lillie M. Sparks, who is suing Michael A. Sparks, filed a motion for temporary alimony and attorney fees.

Mrs. Katie B. Lainhart, suing Herchel O. Lainhart, filed a similar motion and a judgment was rendered in her favor for an attorney fee of $50, to be paid within seven days. This case was set for hearing on Saturday of next week.

Other entries on the docket follow: Roy Miller against Annie O'Howell, damages, motion for costs sustained.

Raborn-McComb Motor Co., against George W. Schneider, note, continued for want of service.

Wilcox Co-Operative Assn. against Kirschbraun and Sons, attachment,

Coffee Shop to Open in Theatre Building

Ray Eckles Will Be Manager Eating Place On Main Street—Open Next Week.

The Missouri Palms Coffee Shop has been selected as the name for the new toasted sandwich and soft drink place to be opened in the Missouri Theatre building next week. Ray Eckles, who for the last six months has been a salesman for the Maryville Electric Light and Power Company, will be manager of the shop and today announced his plans concerning that place.

Equipment of the most modern nature has been purchased for the coffee shop, the manager says. A 6-foot soda fountain will be installed and comfortable chairs and table service provided. Toasted sandwiches, waffle, and coffee will be featured on the menu.

ASKS PASSAGE OF NUMBER 2

ST. LOUISIAN HERE IN INTEREST OF POLICE PENSIONS.

THE CITIES BEHIND IT

Measure Would Permit Them To Care For Faithful Officers, Providing Legislature Acts.

Charles J. Vaughn of St. Louis was in Maryville yesterday in the interest of proposition No. 2 (police pension enabling act), to be voted on at the general election Nov. 2. Mr. Vaughn pointed out that this measure is merely an enabling act and that if it is adopted at the election, a police pension law still must be enacted by the Legislature before cities of the state will have the right to establish pension systems.

He gave the following brief summary of what proposition No. 2 is:

"The state Constitution, at present, prohibits Missouri cities from pensioning police officers, who after years of faithful service become incapacitated, through age, for active duty. It also prohibits pensions to police officers who are permanently disabled through injuries incurred in the performance of duty. In fact, the Constitution as now written prohibits all pensions to police officers.

"Proposition No. 2, submitted at the instance of 57,939 Missouri voters, is an amendment to the State Constitution to remove these restrictions. The amendment applies only to cities. It does not affect the rural communities, but under the law, must be voted upon by the state at large.

"Police pensions mean more efficient police administration.

"It is only simple justice that men who perform faithful service and risk their lives daily in protection of the public should be reasonably provided for when they become disabled or too old for active duty.

"Missouri is one of the few states which by Constitutional provision prohibit police pensions. Practically every city in the United States of 100,000 population or more, with the exception of Missouri cities, have had police pension laws for many years.

"The Missouri Constitution permits firemen's pensions, an amendment to the Constitution, for firemen's pensions, having been obtained in 1892.

"Business men in St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph, and numerous organizations, are earnestly supporting Proposition No. 2. The St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph Chambers of Commerce have indorsed the proposition."

Local Dentists Attend Meeting at Chillicothe

Mayor Louis Stigall of St. Joseph Delivers Address Last Night—Sessions Held At Elks Club.

Dr. Jesse Miller, Dr. H. L. Stinson, Dr. and Mrs. Roy Canon, Miss Hazel Clark and Dr. W. B. Owen are attending the annual meeting of the Northwest Missouri District Dental Society, which opened at Chillicothe yesterday morning. More than thirty dentists are attending the two-day convention. All sessions are being held at the Elks Club. Mayor Louis Stigall of St. Joseph delivered an adress last night.

Mrs. William Steele and Mrs. Charles Russell went to St. Joseph this morning.

Mrs. J. F. Colby spent the day in St. Joseph.

IN HONOR OF DISCOVERER

COLUMBUS DAY OBSERVANCES AT HIGH SCHOOL.

AT ACTIVITY PERIOD

History Club And Elizabethean And Victorian Societies Have Feature Programs Today.

Columbus Day observances were held at meetings of the History Club and the Elizabethean and Victorian literary societies at the high school this morning. A study of the grand opera, "La Boheme," was made at the Zeta Sigma Literary Society meeting and talks on miscellaneous subjects given at the Maryvillian organization.

Miss Florence Wray discussed before the members of the Zeta Sigma Literary Society, the grand opera, "La Boheme," by Puccini. Records were then played on the Victrola. They were Act I, "Mi Chamano Mimi" (My Name is Mimi), Act 2, "Musetta Waltz," and Act 3, "Addio" (Farewell). Other selections from the opera also were played.

The following program was given at the Elizabethean Literary Society:

"Early Life of Columbus," by Leota Clary; story, "Columbus Discovers America," by Frances Lauber; reading, "How Did He Do It?" by Helen Murray; reading, "Christopher Columbus," by Grace Geist; "Voyages of Columbus," by Helen Palmer; "Courage," by Grace McGinnis.

The following program was given at the History Club meeting:

"Earlly Life of Columbus," by Wilbur Frankum; "Character of Columbus," by Calvin Allen; "The World Court," by Veldron Anderson; reading by Dorothy Bailey; French-harp solo by Ben Thompson and selections on the concertone accordion by Ora Petty.

The program of the Victorian Literary Society follows:

Patriotic songs by the club; reading, "Johnny's History Lesson," by Eleanor Stanfield; "Life of Columbus," by Magaret Knox; poem, "Columbus" by Mildred Hotchkin; humorous incidents in the life of Columbus, by Miss Augusta Quell, sponsor; questions concerning history were asked by Marie Davis.

Robert Wamsley gave an educational talk on the subject, "The History of Automobile Tires," at the Maryvillian Literary Society. Bert Lorvelt read a poem followed by a talk on "Old Stamps," by Edward Strough. The concluding number on the program was a talk, "An Interesting Trip," by Walter Taylor.

Kansas Woman Speaks Here Monday Evening

Mrs. Florence M. Farley, Democratic National Committee Woman To Address Voters At Courthouse.

Mrs. Florence M. Farley, Democratic national committee woman from Kansas, will speak at the courthouse here at 8 o'clock on the evening of October 18, it was announced today by Mrs. C. P. Fryer, vice-chairman of the Nodaway County Democratic committee.

Mrs. Farley is said to be a most interesting speaker and the women of the county are especially invited to hear her. She is one of the most prominent women of Kansas.

Dr. J. C. Whitsell, Democratic candidate for Congress from this district, will speak at Hopkins on the evening of October 14 and at Parnell on the evening of October 15. Both meetings will be held in the opera houses.

Snodgrass Back From Iowa City Meeting

Secures Eighty-Two Additions to the Church—Leaves Tomororw Morning for Jacksonville, Fla.

The Rev. R. E. Snograss returned last night from Iowa City, Ia., where he has conducted a meeting for the last four weeks. There were eighty-two additions to the church during that time. The evangelist feels that the meeting was a gerat success, present conditions in Iowa considered.

The Rev. Mr. Snodgrass will leave tomorrow morning for Jacksonville, Fla., where he will conduct a four-weeks meeting. He will then go to Memphis, Tenn., to attend the international convention of the Disciples of Christ. He is on the program for an address at this meeting.

Fifty Cars Needed to Meet Trains Tomorrow

Teachers to Arrive for Convention Here—Chamber of Commerce in Charge of Transportation.

Fifty cars will be needed to meet the 7:40 o'clock Wabash tomorrow night when many teachers will arrive in Maryville to attend the three-day convention here. Twenty-five cars will be required to care for those arriving on the 8:25 o'clock Burlington tomorrow night.

The registration headquarters will be at the Chamber of Commerce office instead of the First M. E. Church as announced yesterday.

All persons who can furnish cars are urged to communicate with Earl Barmann, chairman of the transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce, or the Chamber of Commerce office. Drivers will not be expected to leave the pavement unless they wish to do so.

DOGS FREE TO FROLIC AGAIN

MAYOR LIFTS LOAD OF WORRY FROM CANINE HEARTS.

RABIES DANGER PAST

But the Household Pets Still Must Be "Kept Up" at Night, City's Executive Warns.

After three weeks of confinement, Maryville dogs can frolic tomorrow to their heart's content, with no fear of the penalty of death if they wander off their owners' premises. An order to this effect, suspending an emergency ordinance passed by the City Council on September 21, was issued today by Mayor W. O. Garrett.

The ordinance was passed as the result of discovery of rabies when a dog's head was sent from Maryville to St. Joseph for examination. The emergency period originally was fixed at thirty days, but the officials declared today they believed that danger was past, no other cases having developed.

"As a rule, the people cooperated with us very well," Mayor Garrett said. "We were sorry to order the dogs kept up, but we could not afford to take chances. One child's life is worth more than all the dogs in Maryville."

The suspension of the emergency ordinance does not affect the city's existing regulations with regard to dogs, the mayor warned. These regulations require licenses and provide that no dogs shall be allowed to run at large at night.

Judges to Inspect State Hospital No. 2

Judges E. T. Bailey, J. N. Billingsley and Charles Armstrong, members of the Nodaway County Court, will go to St. Joseph tomorrow to inquire into the condition of patients from this county in State Hospital No. 2. They will be accompanied by Dr. C. P. Fryer.

The county judges make an inspection of the state hospital once each year. Nodaway County has nearly fifty patients in the hospital, it was stated today.

Returns From Meet in Jefferson City

Mrs. F. A. Bush has returned from Jefferson City where she attended the annual convention of the Parent-Teacher association last week. She visited her son, Jarvis, a student at University of Missouri, at Columbia, and her daughter, Ruth, a student nurse at the Missouri Mehodist hospital, in St. Joseph.

Kansas Corn Crop Far Below Normal

Present Estimate Only 31 Per Cent—Yield About Forty Million Bushels Less This Year.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 12—Kansas corn crop this year is only 31 per cent of a normal crop, according to a statement today by J. C. Mohler, secretary of the state board of agriculture. Only 10.3 bushels is the average on the acreage planted. The total yield this year is estimated at only 63,579,000 bushels as compared with 104,643,000 bushels last year.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Leet announce the birth of a son at their home yesterday evening. The baby has been named Richard Hale.

MOTHER AND SON FRIENDS

QUEEN MARIE AND PRINCE ADJUST DIFFERENCES.

READY FOR HER TRIP

Roumanian Royalty Guarded By Several Special Police—May Bring New Fashions To U. S.

Paris, Oct. 12.—Even a dramatic reconciliation with Prince Carol on the eve of her departure for the United States failed to mar the majestic beauty of Queen Marie today as she entrained for Cherbourg where she embarks on the Leviathan, sailing for New York this evening.

Prince Carol, who, on Sunday, failed to keep an appointment to meet the queen and who has apparently suffered because of failure of recognition, at the last moment rushed to his royal mother's hotel and behind closed doors it is said a reconciliation was effected. At any rate, the prince accompanied his royal mother to the train and they were as affectionate as mother and son might be expected to be.

The queen apparently was overjoyed at the reconciliation and in true womanly fashion she wept a bit. But her tears failed to spoil the beauty of the "mother of queens."

The prince saw the queen to her compartment, kissed her and then stood beneath her window on the platform talking with her until the train pulled out.

Several special police guarded Queen Marie as she entrained and held back some four hundred Americans who were also boarding the boat train.

Apparently thrilled over the reconciliation, the princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas rejoiced with Prince Carol.

While Queen Marie and her party were attracting wide attention, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was entraining quietly. For the American women, most of the interest in Queen Marie's departure was tightly locked up in some fifty or more trunks which were stored away in the baggage car. These trunks are said to contain a wardrobe certainly fit for a queen and it is anticipated among the gowns are many which will create new fashions in the United States.

Poultry Association to Elect President

Mrs. John Hamilton Resigns Because Of Other Duties.—Directors Meet Here Saturday.

Mrs. John Hamilton has resigned as president of the Northwest Missouri Poultry Association, it was announced today. Mrs. Hamilton is secretary of the National Rose Comb Leghorn Club, and she did not have time for both offices, she explained.

A new president will be chosen by the board of directors at their meeting Saturday at the Farm Bureau rooms. The meeting will begin at 3 o'clock.

Membership fees continue to roll in, according to T. C. Gray, secretary. Among new members since last week are Mrs. Charles Porter, Mrs. Ed Hunt, Mrs. Jesse Dowden, W. M. Golding and Son, all of Maryville; Mrs. R. M. King and Mrs. M. G. Safley, Hopkins; and J. L. Clayton, Pickering.

New members may enroll with Secretary Gray; Harve England, superintendent of the annual show, to be held December 1-4; or any of the following directors: A. E. Straub, Mrs. Guy Aley and Charles Viles, all of Maryville, Mrs. John Morehouse and B. T. Wray of Hopkins, J. Edward Stevenson, Graham, and Mrs. Homer Thompson, Conception Junction.

O. H. Simpson New Louisiana Governor

Takes Oath Of Office Two Hours After Death of Henry L. Fuqua, Ill Long Time.

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 12.—Governor Henry L. Fuqua of Louisiana died at the executive mansion here last night from internal gastric hemorrhage. The executive, who had served two years and five months on a four-year term, had been ill since his inauguration.

Lieut-Governor O. H. Simpson was automatically promoted to serve the remainder of the term. He took the oath of office two hours after the executive's death was announced.

James Gutch of Chariton, Ia. is visiting friends in Maryville.

Finds Son Hanging on a Gallows Rope

New Yorker's Search Ends After Hangman At San Quentin Prison Springs Trap.

San Quentin, Oct. 12—H. J. Adams of Melrose, N. Y. has found his son James at the end of a gallows rope.

California took James' life last week in atonement for his complicity, with Alphonse Rincon, in the murder of T. K. Ullman for a handful of dimes.

They were hanged together, James under his alias of Willis Adams.

Warden Frank J. Smith received directions from H. J. Adams, who learned through the aid of Byron Fizell of Santa Paula, that Willie and James Adams were one, to deliver the body to specified funeral directors.

Indentifications were made from photographs of the dead youth from prison authorities.

MRS. SIELAFF IS THREATENED

STAR WITNESS WILL BE CLOSELY GUARDED.

A HOLIDAY IN COURT

Tomorrow Morning, Mrs. Wiseman-Sielaff Will Resume Starting Disclosures of "Miss X" Hoax.

Los Angeles, Oct. 12.—Mysterious death threats were made today against Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sielaff, confessed perpetrator of the "Miss X" hoax, following her testimony in the preliminary hearing of Aimee Semple McPherson, famous woman evangelist, during which she hurled grave accusations at Mrs. McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy.

As a result of these threats, S. S. Hahn, attorney for Mrs. Wiseman-Sielaff, appeared and asked protection for the state's star witness. Detectives closely guarded Mrs. Sielaff during the day.

An unsigned letter, believed to have been written by a woman was sent to the attorney's office. It said, "This woman will pay dearly for what she is doing."

The evangelist and her mother plan to spend today at the beach.

When court reopens tomorrow morning after today's holiday, Mrs. Wiseman-Sielaff will continue her astounding narrative of how Mrs. McPherson hired and coached her to declare publicly that it was she and her sister "Miss X" and not the Angelus temple pastor who spent ten days with Kenneth G. Ormiston in a Carmel-by-the-Sea cottage.

Russian Soil Experts May Come as Observers

Agriculture Department Feels International Meeting in June Must Be Open to All Countries.

Washington, Oct. 12.—With the state department refusing to invite Russia soil experts to the fifth international conference of soil science here next June, agricultural department officials said today it would be virtually futile to hold such a session without the soviet government was represented.

While America cannot invite soviet representatives as Russia is not recognized by America, pressure is to be brought on the state department to have soviet delegates admitted to the country as "unofficial observers."

K. of P. Convention Opens at State Capital

Jefferson City, Oct. 12.—The annual Grand Lodge of the Grand Knights of Pythias of the state opened here today with more than six hundred delegates in attendance.

There was an open meeting for the delegates this morning with Mayor C. W. Thomas of Jefferson City and Governor Baker delivering welcoming addresses. The response was made by Grand Chamberlain William Chapman of Steelville.

Court Fight Looms on Valentino Will

Los Angeles, Oct. 12.—A bitter legal contest over the estate of the late Rudolph Valentino appeared a certainty today, following admission of the will to probate in Superior Court here.

Miss Halcyon Hooker has returned to Lincoln, Nebraska, after spending the week-end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Hooker.

SAYS PEOPLE HAVE VERDICT

SUPREME JURY IN DAUGHERTY-MILLER CASE.

NEW TRIAL UNLIKELY

Attorney Buckner Will Not Decide For Month—Borah Committee To Investigate Charges.

New York, Oct. 12.—A new trial appeared unlikely today in the case of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney-general, and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, freed yesterday when the jury in the $441,000 conspiracy trial reported a disagreement and was discharged.

United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner, who represented the government, pointed out today that the indictments still stood against Daugherty and Miller but said he would not know for a month whether or not he would bring them to trial again. Buckner and his assistant plainly showed their disappointment.

Senator Borah, at Washington, indicated that Daugherty and Miller will be compelled to testify before the Borah committee to investigate transactions of the alien property custodian's office. The committee is not expected to meet before December.

Daugherty was enroute to his home at Columbus, Ohio today to have his inflamed eye treated. Miller left for Wilmington, Del., to visit his two children.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 12.—That it "seemed impossible for the former attorney-general of the United States to prove himself innocent" was the declaration made today by President William Green in calling attention of the labor convention here that the jury in the Daugherty-Miller case had disagreed.

"While this jury has disagreed," the president said, "I feel sure that the greater jury—that great American public—will have its own opinion regarding the guilt or innocence of this man."

Green pointed out that during the shopmen's strike on the railroads, Daugherty, through his influence, secured the most "far reaching injunction ever obtained in a United States court, which more than anything else contributed to prolongation of that controversy."

The convention entered its eighth day of deliberations in national convention today.

"Blackjack" and Paris Cheered by Veterans

Legionnaires Manifest Intention of Electing Pershing and Selecting Overseas Site for 1927 Meeting.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—Pershing and Paris!

The boys of the American Legion today unmistakenly manifest their intentions of electing the leader of the American World War forces as the next national commander and have him lead them back to France for the 1927 convention.

The election will be held Friday. The convention site will be chosen tomorrow and everything is "in the bag."

The convention demonstrated its overwhelming preference for General Pershing when he made his first appearance on the platform today. A demonstration with state banners similar to those of national political conventions was started. As speaker after speaker, including two official representatives of the French government, referred to Paris as the site of the 1927 meeting, the delegates stood upon their chairs and cheered.

The "time and place" committee today attempted to bring forth its report recommending Paris for the national convention next year but lack of time prevented a final vote until tomorrow.

W. C. Frank Taken Home.

W. C. Frank was taken to his home, 307 East Seventh street, today after confinement at the St. Francis hospital, where he underwent an operation.

J. B. Robinson, sr., went to St. Joseph today on business.

Weather

Unsettled and cooler Tonight, possibly showers; Wednesday partly cloudy, cooler in eastern part.

SEEING HISTORY

That's a fine idea, to make moving picture records of historical events as they occur, and file the films in the Congressional Library for future use.

If this arrangement is worked out adequately, history will be a much more interesting study for our grandchildren than it has been for most of us.

It will be, to the child of the future, as it would with us today if we were able to step into any public library and say, "Please show me the Surrender of Cornwallis," or "I came to consult the Inauguration of Abraham Lincoln," and then take a seat in a convenient projection room while an attendant ran off the film.

ABOUT GROWING OLD.

The psychologist who said the other day that old age and death is a mere matter of psychology, seems to be skipping about the edge of sophistry. To claim full credit for modern knowledge which has lengthened human life five years in two generations is one thing, but to reach out from that for a logical conclusion that life may be prolonged indefinitely by mere psychological effort is something different. This would be comforting to those who desire to live to be 200 years old, but before men reach that age other knowledge than merely how to wish for prolonged existence will be necessary.

To fix an arithmetical program by which human life is to be lengthened according to the ratio of the first modern steps is to invite disappointment. Some time, possibly, men may live to be much older than in this generation, but when that time arrives human beings will be found living as well as thinking in a manner far from the habits of 1926. Physical death and old age is something more than a simple matter of psychology, at least in man's present state of knowledge.

COLUMBUS DAY AND PAN AMERICA

The 12th of October is the only date which has equal significance for all the Americas, and therefore it is peculiarly fitted that on this day we should pause to consider what we have in common with the other republics of the New World.

We are too prone to note the differences in language, customs and cultural manifestations, and forget those deep-seated aspirations and attitudes which are characteristic of the New World peoples. Their love of freedom, search of effective forms of self-government, belief in peaceful means of settling international disputes, toleration of other races and creeds, and the growing spirit of cooperation in humanitarian and intellectual as well as in business interests have been an example to the world. It was a great South American statesman—Simon Bolivar—who in 1826 first brought together representatives of the struggling American nations in a congress which, as Dr. James Brown Scott has pointed out, furnished a precedent not only for all succeeding Pan American congresses, but also for the calling of the first peace conference at The Hague.

Since 1890, when the Pan American Union was established, there has been a succession of Pan American gatherings, dealing with almost every phase of life—from the broad questions of international law, science, economic and commercial relations, to those matters that touch the daily life of people—the press, the school, the beneficial work of the Red Cross and the protection of childhood. With increasing frequency men and women from all the American republics are getting together to discuss these problems of common interest, and because they represent a smaller group of nations than the world-wide congresses, a closer acquaintance and a greater solidarity of spirit are possible. This unity of ideals and of purposes has no menace to other parts of the world; rather, since it is directed entirely to peaceful and humanitarian ends, it is a powerful factor in preserving the peace of the world and in building up international justice.

The Latin American republics are making such astounding progress commercially and economically that from a material point of view it would be folly for the United States not to cultivate its natural friendship with them. Statesmen agree that the next quarter of a century will see marvelous development in Latin America, a development in which the United States will have a large share through the natural increase of trade and friendly intercourse of all kinds.

In honoring the memory of Columbus, then, we may reflect on our common American heritage, our common American ideals and our common American destiny.

A GOOD ANSWER.

Merle Thorpe, in Nation's Business Magazine, says:

A business man who had been irritated beyond measure by solicitors for this and that—tag days, drives, and charity advertising—so the story goes, was bitten by a dog. He went on to "business as usual." When word got around his outer office and a couple of his irritants inquired solicitously of him:

"You have just been bitten by a mad dog!"

"Yes, I was." (Business of not looking up.)

"What! And you came right to your office?"

"Yes. There was some writing I felt I just had to get done." (Business of going on writing.)

"O, I see. Writing your will, I take it."

"No. Writing the names of the people I am going to bite when I go mad."

What Other Editors Say

Manging for the Other Fellow

An eastern corporation has an efficiency expert who has been doing excellent work. He abhors waste and watches expenditures with an eagle eye. He has made good with the concern in a large way and is valued highly. But the other day he came to the conclusion that he can't successfully manage his own affairs, and he requested his secretary to take complete charge of his own expenses.

The old story of the shoemaker who lets his children go barefoot. A lot of us are like that. We know how things ought to be run, but we can't run own own affairs. We can see the weakness in the way our neighbors carry on, but we can't seem to apply the same principles to our own conduct. We could reform the rest of the world, and maybe do a pretty fair job of it, but we can't reform ourselves.—Joplin Globe.

Keeping Up by Keeping Behind

The best editorial we have read on credit in the past several months we found in a full page advertisement, run by the business and professional men of Duluth, in the Duluth Herald. Here it is: One of the most foolish and inexcusable of all human practices is that of making false display on other people's money. Mrs. Smith, of unlimited means, buys an expensive gown. She can afford it. Her neighbor, Mrs. Jones, decides she can have a gown just as expensive as Mrs. Smith's. She cannot afford it. But with more envy in her heart than money in her purse or sense in her head, and still having a little credit, she buys the gown anyway. A man who still owes his tailor a balance on his last season's suit is dickering with an automobile salesman for a greater trade—in allowance on a more expensive car. A young man who has developed the habit of "forgetting" to pay his bills manages somehow to have money to lavish on his lady friends. A hostess who has not sent her grocer a check since month before last, is entertaining lavishly in an effort to outdo one of her guests whose affair of the other night was the talk of the set. Such people are keeping up a front socially by the unfair means of keeping behind financially—but sooner or later the day of reckoning is bound to come. Credit—instituted as a necessary convenience and founded upon man's faith in his fellow-man—is all too frequently abused as a result of our common desire to "keep up a front." No one can maintain a $300 pace on a $200 income. Let us continue to use credit, but only as it should be used. In other words, let us be sure our incomes are equal to our promises and obligations.—Sturgeon Leader.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Washington—Senator Swanson is the latest solon to return from Europe with an account of the old world's lack of gratitude for the war debt settlement terms offered by this country.

Unlike Senators Harrison and Caraway, who came back as mad as hornets, the Virginia senator is hurt rather than angry.

He makes some allowances for the Europeans, particularly the French, on the ground that, with the exception of a few financiers, they don't understand what they're getting.

Swanson also lets this cat out of he bag:

Europeans are wrought up, for one reason, because the American debt commissioners were trying to tell this country one thing, while the European debt negotiators were trying to tell their respective countries something else.

In the case of France, for example, Ambassador Berenger went home prepared to say he had made an excellent bargain.

Simultaneously the American commissioners, apparently afraid of being blamed here for over-generosity, as Swanson points out, were assuring the United States that they had exacted from France the last copper it was possible to get without bankrupting her.

Perhaps this latter story would have been all right for home consumption, the Virginian thinks, if the French could have been prevented from over-hearing it.

In these days of rapid transmission and no censorship, it couldn't be kept bottled up on this side of the water, but was promptly cabled to France and published under big headlines in all the newspapers. Swanson can't see that the French public can be much criticized for assuming that the commissioners knew what they were talking about.

Oct. 16, 1849—On this day Thomas H. Benton, before the national railroad convention in St. Louis, delivered his famous speech in favor of the "central national" route to the Pacific, closing with the prophetic words, "There is the East, there is India."

Oct. 16, 1861—The State convention passed the ordinance providing that all civil officers be required to "take and subscribe" the oath of loyalty.

Oct. 16, 1894—Photographers Association of Missouri organized.

Seventy years ago, October 13, 1856, the first St. Louis Fair was inaugurated. It was commonly known as the "Mississippi Valley Fair." The organization was given the name of the "St. Louis Agricultural and Mechanical Association" when its charter was granted in December, 1855, by the General Assembly of the state through the efforts of Hon. J. R. Barret, who was chosen first president of the association.

Numerous agricultural societies had existed previous to 1856, but none of them had been permanent although they participated in exhibitions. It was through the tireless work of Hon. J. R. Barret that the Annual Fair Exhibition came into existence as early as it did.

The object of the fair was set forth in a striking editorial of a journal of that date which declared the purposes of the association to be "the promotion of improvements in all the various departments of agriculture including not only the great staples of industry and trade, but also fruits, vegetables, and ornamental gardening, the promotion of mechanic arts in all their various branches, the improvement of breeds of all useful and domestic animals, the general advancement of rural economy and household manufactures, and the dissemination of useful knowledge upon these subjects."

The first board of directors was elected in 1856, several months preceding the fair. They were: Andrew Harper, Thomas T. January, Henry Clay Hart, John Withnell, Thornton Grimsley, Frederick Dings, James M. Hughes, Henry S. Turner, Charles L. Hunt, John M. Chambers, Henry T. Blow, Norman J. Colman, and J. R. Barret.

Immediately following the election of the board of directors, officers for the first year of the association were selected as follows: J. R. Barret, president; T. Grimsley, A. Harper and Henry Clay Hart, vice-presidents; H. S. Turner, treasurer; G. O. Klab, general agent and recording secretary; and O. W. Collett, corresponding secretary.

Commenting on the value of the fair to the state, a St. Louis paper said: "Though the fair is open to the whole Mississippi Valley and the rest of mankind, Missouri has a greater interest in it than any other state."

Exhibits at the first fair were composed of horse-power machinery, sewing machines, livestock, washing machines, fruits, vegetables, farm products, wines and whisky. One of the featured prize lists was that for the best Bourbon wines and whisky and peach and apple brandy. Silver loving cups were to be awarded.

The early accommodations of the fair were slightly more than could be expected in such a short time, yet continued success of the exhibitions later warranted the thorough establishment of the association upon a firm and substantial financial basis. Col. John O'Fallon, extensive property holder in St. Louis at that time, became a great benefactor to the association when he made a proposition to the directors for an ideal fair ground location, which they bought for $50,000, but which was valued at twice that amount.

An amphitheater seating 10,000 persons was completed for the opening date of the fair. Hon. Sterling Price, governor of Missouri, attended the initial session and reviewed the proceedings from horseback. Prizes totaling $10,000 were offered.

During the Civil War, exhibitions were suspended and the grounds were used as a camp for soldiers known as "Benton Barracks." Exhibitions, however, were resumed in 1866 under the direction of A. B. Barrett, then president of the association. The second amphitheater, seating 25,000 persons, was completed in 1870.

With the growing popularity of the annual exhibitions, additional features were added and in 1876 the Zoological Garden was opened. Two years later, one of the greatest industrial parades in the history of the association was held, in which there were thirteen divisions and innumerable floats of the respective units represented.

The mechanical division of the fair was vital because St. Louis was a vantage point for the manufacture and distribution of farm implements. A special organization called "Implement and Vehicle Board of Trade" functioned in St. Louis and directed the mechanical unit of the fair.

Charles Green became president of the fair association in 1880 and served for 12 successive years, a period in which there were many noteworthy improvements such as mile race track, grand stand, 15,000 seating capacity; club house, stables, and other buildings, which comprised a minature city within the fair ground enclosure. In 1891 the animals then left in the Zoological Garden were sold to the city authorities and were placed in Forest Park.

Distinction was brought to St. Louis through the exhibitions from year to year. Some of the distinguished public officials, politicians, and other visitors to the fair were: President U. S. Grant, 1875-1876; President Grover Cleveland and Mrs. Cleveland, 1883; President Benjamin Harrison, 1887; vice-presidents, Henry Wilson, Thomas A. Hendricks, and Schuyler Colfax; General W. S. Hancock; Horace Greeley; General Sheridan; John S. Fullerton; The Emperor of Brazil; Don Pedro; Prince of Wales; Duke of New Castle and others.

The Agricultural and Mechanical Association became the St. Louis Fair Association before 1900. The St. Louis Association then continued the annual exhibitions until 1904 when the World's Fair, known as the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, was held in St. Louis. Since 1904 there have been no annual fair exhibitions such as those that were held under the regime of the two associations, but there have been numerous expositions and pageants which have attracted nation-wide interest in St. Louis. The last official fair bulletin for the St. Louis Association was published following the fair of 1903, and it was an announcement concerning the fair for the coming year.

Wets Have Answered Temperance Board

Washington, Oct. 12—Answering the Methodist church temperance board's recent assertion that the governmental liquor regulation in Canada is a failure, the association against prohibition amendment has issued a telegram from the secretary of the moderation league in Alberta, saying the act is "working well" and denying there exists in that province a moonshine liquor problem. Recent option votes, said, Wallace Howe, secretary, has resulted in wet victories.

Juniors at the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College have announced that the staff which will be in charge of the 1927 year book, "The Tower," has been chosen and that Byron Beavers, of Grant City, has been named editor-in-chief. The sponsors for the class are Miss Minnie B. James, of the commerce department, social advisor, and M. W. Wilson, of the chemistry department, business advisor.

Members of the staff have held their first meeting and plans already are underway for the book's publication. Arrangements are now being made for the students of the college to have their photographs taken at once so that the work of preparing the engravings can be started soon. It is necessary for the illustrations and photographs which are to be used in the annual to be in the engraving plant some months ahead of the publication date if the desired good cuts are procured. The staff is very anxious for their efforts to be fruitful and plans to provide the photographs promptly. Arrangements also are being made at this time for the handling of the engravings by a company which specializes in that sort of work.

Photographs of the members of the Junior class are expected to be completed about Nov. 1. Members of the other classes also are expected to have their photographs made within the next several weeks.

Heads of the various departments of the staff have started the task of collecting the material desired for the year book. Photographs made on the college campus and others of college students are being collected and later a selection of the best ones will be made. Material for the literary department of the book will be provided by the English composition classes.

Now He's "Captain" Eek of Air Service

Maryville Man Receives Notice of Promotion. Also to Be Examiner for State of Missouri.

Official notice that he has been promoted to a captaincy in the United States Air Reserve has been received by L. M. Eek, head of the commercial department of the State Teachers College. Mr. Eek has been in the Air Reserve since the close of the World War and has had the rank of first lieutenant for some time.

Last summer Mr. Eek was an aviation instructor at Fort Riley, Kansas. He was originally commissioned as a second lieutenant at March Field, California, and during the war saw service at several flying fields in this country. He was commissioned a first lieutenant at Rantoul, Ill.

Captain Eek also has been appointed examiner of reserve officers for Missouri. This appointment is separate from the other, coming through division headquarters at Omaha, while his commission will come from Washington, signed by the adjutant-general of the United States and President Coolidge.

The regular Newman Club meeting at the State Teachers College opened with an invocation by Miss Katherine Franken. The minutes of the last meeting were read and plans to entertain the alumnae were discussed followed by a program:

Piano trio, "Waltz," May Sturm, Mildred Clark, Margaret Quinlan, "Air De Chasse."

Piano solo, "Fifth Nocturne," "Idilio," Esther Daugherty.

The meeting closed with singing of the club song.

Peter Behm Falls; Taken to Hospital

Peter Behm was seriously injured today when he fell down the stairs at the M. B. Sherlock home, near Maryville. Mr. Behm fell on his head and it is not possible yet to tell just how serious the injuries are. According to his physician there were no bones broken. He is a patient at the St. Francis Hospital.

MISSOURI NOT MUCH EXCITED

EASTERN WRITER FINDS APATHY IN POLITICS HERE.

A REAL ISSUE LACKING

Republicans Seek To Split Democrats. —Personalities Entering Into Campaign.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN
Washington Correspondent for the New York Times and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 12.—In a state which usually finds polities an absorbing thing and enters into the spirit of party contests with the enthusiasm, it is surprising to discover that the apathy which prevails elsewhere in the Middle West is reflected in Missouri in connection with this year's partisan campaign.

Various explanations are offered for this condition:

The people are too much interested in their own affairs to bother overmuch about such a thing, for example, as the election of a member of the United States Senate; primary contests preceding an official election give the voters their fill of politics; the world is so saturated with things of interest, including amusements and the automobiles, that polities is a mere incident and not half so thrilling as other diversions; many newspapers do not give as much space to political happenings and political comment as they used to give; there are no outstanding issues to arouse the voters; there are few conspicuous leaders with causes to plead and able to take the captaincy of a crusade.

Reed Is An Issue.

These and other suggestions are put forth casually and, in most cases, without conviction. Observers differ widely in discussing the lethargic state of affairs they have observed. Whatever the cause or causes, the fact remains that the present political let-down appears to be widespread in the Central West.

A good-sized segment of opinion inclines to the explanation that the absence of outstanding issues is chiefly responsible. Missouri is no exception to that absence.

Senator George H. Williams, Republican nominee for the seat in the Senate he now holds, is trying to make Senator James A. Reed the issue, basing his attitude on the rather roundabout contention that, as Reed went back on his party, so will Congressman Harry B. Hawes, Williams' Democratic opponent, because he will do whatever Reed wants and, by and large, can't be depended on for stickability.

That, however, is partly a personal issue and some critics of Senator Williams are inclined to the view that it is a Democratic party matter and not the business of a Republican to attempt to tell the Democrats what they should do about it, even if they believe the accusation to be true.

Williams Too Timid.

Hawes is conforming in a measure to the desire of the National Democratic Senatorial and Congressional Campaign committees that the tariff should be stressed as the outstanding issue of the campaign, but, in the main, the things discussed on the stump by the two senatorial candidates are largely personal.

How Williams stood or stands on this or that is hammered home by Hawes, while Williams, in turn, seeks to interpret the record of Hawes in a way detrimental to the Democratic candidate's interest.

Williams, says Hawes, tried to get Reed to defeat the McNary-Haughen farm-aid bill and then voted for it. Hawes, says Williams, voted for a House of Representatives resolution in favor of American adherence to the World Court and then recanted.

Hawes is far more aggressive than Williams. Some of Williams' friends, especially former Gov. Hyde, do not like his course and urging him to come out more strongly against his opponent.

It seems that during the days of the so-called Butler gang in St. Louis, a quarter of a century ago, Williams was slugged by gangsters, and, as Hawes was chairman of the Police Board at that time, Williams is being urged to put the blame on Hawes for the conditions which permitted the slugging.

Hawes Willing To Fight.

"And if he does," Hawes is represented as saying, "I'll have some things to say about my opponent that are not barred by the statute of limitations."

Other matters, more or less personal, are beginning to get into the campaign. One of them is suggested by this statement from Sam W. Fordyce, a vigorous St. Louis lawyer, who is the Hawes campaign manager in that city, in announcing that Reed would make a non-partisan speech on Tuesday night before the St. Louis Advertising Clubs.

"Reed's purely partisianship speeches will come later, but he may have something to say in answer to the attack on Hawes for bringing the widow of Adolphus Busch home from Germany to her children and grandchildren." That suggests an effort to show that Hawes had German affiliations.

The World Court is not a real issue because both candidates are opposed to it. The prohibition issue is hardly an issue because Hawes is wet and Williams reputedly so, although he contends prohibition is a moral and religious and not a political question.

No Real Issue.

Some of the political leaders concede that there is no real issue involved in the campaign. The Democrats are contending that chances favor Hawes, among them that for the first time in years the party in Missouri is united; that Missouri is normally Democratic and inclined to abandon the party reservation only in presidential years and that conditions among the farming population are not of the best and will be reflected in the disposition of dissatisfied people who vote against the party in power.

The Republicans have a strong organization. Its power was demonstrated in the party senatorial primaries this year, when for the first time the Republicans had a primary registration double that of the Democrats.

There have been bank failures in Missouri, chiefly in the northern portion, where the conditions reflect those of the dissatisfied and insurgent Iowa corn belt. These failures are attributed largely to the land speculation in which farmers indulged during the period of inflated prices for farm lands and from which the sections affected have never fully recovered, with mortgages still running and banks finding it hard to collect from those to whom they loaned money to buy costly farms.

Missouri farms in certain sections have been hit by a large drouth, followed by cold weather and after that the deluge of rain that has caused great floods in parts of the Middle West.

Hawes Attacks Tariff.

Hawes is telling the farmers that the Republican protective tariff discriminates against them in the interest of the big industries of the East. He paints the plight of the farmer, not neglecting to remind him that he is opposed on every side, with floods augmenting the unfairness of the tariff, and that the Republican party has done much to injure him and is doing nothing to relieve his distress.

Hawes is also stressing the allegation that the country's government is under a New England domination with no understanding of the problems of the West or sympathy for them. President Coolidge has not been brought prominently into the campaign, although conspicious campaign orators have sought to do so.

Democrats claim that among farmers and laboring people the President has lost his popularity and that he has slipped among retail merchants whose trade is dependent upon the products of agriculture.

The battleground, it is pointed out, is St. Louis, with Hawes, the Democratic candidate, wetter than Williams, the Republican candidate, but with St. Louis normally and overwhelmingly Republican.

Tigers and Huskers to Play Turkey Day?

Negotiations Are Under Way to Replace Kansas With Nebraska on Missouri Schedule.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct 12.—Officials of the University of Nebraska athletic department made it known here yesterday that negotiations are under way for a Thanksgiving Day game with the University of Missouri in the future. Nothing definite, however, has been arranged. The situation was discussed between the school's representatives last Saturday in Lincoln.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 12.—A possibility that Missouri and Nebraska football teams will meet on Thanksgiving for the next two years, and that the annual Missouri-Kansas game will be shoved up to an earlier date looms as a possibility here today following the Missouri-Nebraska game of last Saturday, when it was learned that the Husker athletic officials were very anxious to meet the Tigers on a later date hereafter.

C. L. Brewer, Missouri's athletic director, refused to comment on the report that the Huskers would play on Thanksgiving day here next year, and at the same time he denied that there would be any change of date for the Missouri-Kansas game. He did admit however, that Nebraska did not want to play the Tigers in October this year, and that he was sure they would hold out for a late November date next year.

Signing of a contract by Missouri and Nebraska for a Turkey day game before 1928 is impossible, however. The Tigers have agreed to meet Kansas on the Saturday before Thanksgiving here this year and on the Jayhawk field at Lawrence on the same day next year.

Missouri alumni and Tiger fans in this vicinity are very anxious for the Tigers to play on Thanksgiving. This has been brought out every time that any controversy arises over the date of the Missouri-Kansas classic, and while it is only a report thus far, several who are in a position to know here say that it is quite likely that the 1927 Missouri-Nebraska game will be played on Thanksgiving day with the game at Lincoln on the same date the year following.

With Missouri defeatink what they believed to be its only competition for the Valley title this year out of the way, and with prospects for even a greater team next year. And while the making of the Valley schedule is up to a schedule committee, the title winners are usually given a preference in dates.

The VANITY CASE

by Carolyn Wells

NEA FICTION

© 1926 by G.P.PUTNAM SONS

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

MRS. PRENTISS sees lights mysteriously appear and disappear in the HEATH household next door one night and the next day Harbor Gardens, Long Island, is agog with the murder of MYRA HEATH and the disappearance of her husband, PERRY.

House guests of the Heaths are LAWRENCE INMAN, heir to Myra's fortune, and BUNNY MOORE, vivacious, golden-haired, to whom suspicion points because of her refusal to answer questions.

Myra Heath was peculiar: She never used cosmetics, never wore colors. She had a mania for collecting glass, and it was a rare old whisky bottle from her collection that the murderer used to kill her. Candles were burning at her head and feet and nearby was a card marked, "The Work of Perry Heath." Strangest of all, she was heavily made up and garbed in gay colors.

The peculiar thing about Heath's disappearance is that all the windows and doors had been locked on the inside the night before and were found that way in the morning. Finger prints of Bunny Moore and Inman were found on the bottle.

At the Country Club the murder is discussed by SAM ANDERSON, Heath's rival for the club presidency; AL CUNNINGHAM, who is trying to solve the crime, and others. Some believe Heath the murderer. Anderson disagrees. TODHUNTER BUCK, nephew of Mrs. Prentiss and in love with Bunny, suggests to Cunningham that Heath also may have been murdered.

EMMA, a waitress in the Heath home, tells of Seeing Bunny ascend the stairs about the time of the murder, carrying her vanity case. Later Bunny is amazed to get a phone call from Perry Heath telling her Inman is guilty. Bunny breaks down and faints under a grilling by DETECTIVE MOTT, who makes up his mind that she is guilty. Inman confides to Buck that he saw Bunny creeping the stairs after the murder, and Mott, questions all the servants and tells them to keep silent.

Cunningham gets a note from Anderson and goes to his house where Perry Heath suddenly appears out of the night and begins to talk.

Anderson invites Cunningham to his house and there, while waiting for his host, Cunningham is suddenly confronted by Perry Heath, who disappears as mysteriously as he had appeared. Shortly afterward Anderson comes in.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Anderson's voice was lost as he entered the house and made for the dining room. He had pushed Cunningham ahead of him, and soon the two were sitting down to a very appetizing chafing dish supper.

"Well, I suppose you want to hear what I did," Anderson said, and paused suddenly as he saw Cunningham staring at him.

So suddenly, that he bit his lip and rising, with a muffled exclamation of pain, he hurried from the room, but was back in a moment.

"Bit my lip," he exclaimed, tenderly patting the bruised place with his table napkin, and resuming his chair. "All right, now, nothing serious. Well, Cunny, I'm like that man who said he didn't accomplish as much as he expected and he didn't expect he would! I thought it would be easy to trace Perry Heath through his bankers. But they know nothing about him at all. They let me see his bank account, though,—I felt a mean cur to look at it!—and only a day or two before he disappeared, he had received a big check from a man named Crandall. I assumed it was payment for a picture, and I hunted down the Crandall man. That's what took the time, for he lived out in a beastly suburb. Well, I found him, and he had bought one of Perry's pictures, and it was his check. But he knew nothing of Perry. He had bought the picture through Carr and Holden, —they're Heath's dealers, you know. So, I didn't get a bit farther, and I'm disgusted with detective work,— my own, or anybody else's!"

"So am I" said Cunningham, so emphatically that Anderson looked up quickly.

"Why, what's come over you?" he inquired, with interest. "I thought Sherlock was your middle name?"

"No, Fathead's my middle name! Numskull, nincompoop, dumb-bell,—any of those!"

"Explain," said Anderson, smiling at the dejected countenance that faced him.

"Well," Cunningham shot his bolt, "Perry Heath was here tonight."

"What!" Anderson's tone was as explosive as the other's, and he evinced unbounded incredulity.

"Yes, Perry, himself, in the flesh. I talked with him."

"Well, if you're going to talk with me, make yourself explicit. I don't yet grasp your meaning, my boy."

So Cunningham told him, plainly and truthfully, every word that had passed between himself and the fugitive Heath.

He spoke slowly and straightforwardly, but he kept a wary eye out for any expression on Anderson's face that might warn him how his tale was to be taken.

Sam Anderson said no word until the whole story was told. He watched Cunningham carefully, looking up alertly if the narrative halted, and when the climax was reached he remarked, briefly:

"You were quite right, Al, about your middle names."

That was all, but Cunningham grew hot all over at the scathing tone of reproach.

"Now, look here, Sam," he began, but Anderson interrupted:

"There's nothing to 'look here' about. You were a double-barrelled idiot to let Heath get away, if you had him here. One yell from you would have brought at least three men servants from the house, and more from the garage and garden. You muffed it, Cunny, that's all there is about that. Now don't whine, and don't apologize. Your stupidity is beyond all apology and whining won't do a bit of good. How did he look? Fit, and all that?"

"I couldn't see very well, it was dark, and, too, I was so flabbergasted."

"You would be!" and Anderson still used that tone of utter exasperation at his friend's stupidity. "Well, all we can do now, is to try our best to set the little girl free and run Inman in."

Anderson spoke with brisk energy, as one who sees his plan of action made clear.

"Easier said than done," Cunningham growled.

"No, not if you tell your story to the authorities as convincingly as you have told it to me. I deplore your inactivity, but I am glad to have your evidence. The testimony of an eye witness, repeated at first hand, must have weight, and even that dunderhead Mott can't fail to recognize it."

"You know," Cunningham said, musingly, "that young chap next door to the Heath's, he believed all along that Inman was the murderer, But he said, that Inman killed Heath, too, and hid his body in the cellar or pitched it into the sea."

"How clever!" Anderson said, sarcastically. "But now, we know,— or at least, you know, that Heath is alive, —I say, Al, it was dark, are you sure that was Heath?"

"Oh, yes. I know Perry as well as you do, and I could see him clearly enough to recognize him. And you know that little trick he has of tossing back that lock of hair that falls over his forehead, in true artist fashion. Oh, yes, it was Perry all right."

"Well, then Inman didn't kill him, in spite of the young man's astute deductions."

"No, of course not. Buck doesn't know anything of sleuthing—any more than I do," Cunningham added with a wry smile.

"Don't blame yourself too much. I daresay I lit into you too roughly, old chap. If so, forget it. But I confess I should have liked to come home and find you here with Perry Heath, bound and gagged in a big chair!"

"But I had no reason to bind and gag him. He came to give helpful information——"

"Which you swallowed, bait, hook and sinker! Oh, I don't say it may not all be true, but, on the other hand it may not. Why, just suppose Perry Heath was the murderer, wouldn't he act just the same way? Suppose he wanted to free the little girl from suspicion, wouldn't he lay the blame on Larry Inman, the only possible suspect except himself? It's a moil, any way you look at it, but I wish I could have talked to Heath, even if he got away afterward."

"I wish you could have, Sam. I'm darned sorry I let him go, but he just vanished, you see."

"Like the Boojum. Well, what say, Al, shall we go over to headquarters and acquaint the powers that be with this tale, or shall we sleep over it and give it to them in the morning?"

"Oh, let's leave it till morning. Nobody of importance will be there this time of night, and I don't want to go clear out to Mott's house. I should think morning would be time enough."

"And let Heath put a few hundred more miles between himself and us! Though I don't suppose any search party could pick him up now, the trail is too cold. Well, so be it, then. Come on out to the porch and have a night cap and smoke and tomorrow we'll electrify the police,—to no good whatever!"

"You scoff at everything, Sam, but what have you to offer at a better plan of pursuit. If you'd been here, what would you have said to Heath?"

"First of all, if you want the truth, Cunny, I'd have marched him staright to headquarters. If Mott wasn't there I'd have sent for him, p. d. q. And then I'd have made Heath tell his story under oath. Then we'd have something to go on, some sworn evidence. I say, suppose we go over to Heath's house and confront Inman with this tale."

"You may go if you like, but I shan't. I like Inman, and—oh, hang it all, I don't think I believe Heath's story at all. The more I think of it, the more fishy it seems."

"You mean you suspect——"

"Bunny Moore. I can't see any way out for her. To begin with Inman doesn't act like a guilty man. And Bunny does."

"How does she"

"Well, she bursts into tears whenever she's questioned."

"What girl wouldn't, especially an innocent one?"

"Well, then, there's a lot of evidence about her being downstairs late at night, and all that——"

"What does that prove?"

"Nothing much, I admit. But her finger prints are on the bottle—under Inman's."

"Oh, Lord, Cunny, we've mulled over all those points a hundred times. Do get some new ones. Here, have another cigar. And look out where you sling your ashes. Why use the whole floor?"

"Lord, Sam, what a fuss you are! I guess I'll go home, and try to sleep on this thing. Maybe the night will bring counsel, as the poet or some wise guy says."

"Well, try it out. But if the night brings it to you, let me know early in the morning. For otherwise, I'm going to Mott with this story of the appearance of the missing man. Golly, to think I was combing New York City for the wretch, and here he was calmly sitting on my porch talking to my detective!"

"Don't rub it in, Sam," Cunningham growled.

"Oh, it's all right, Al." Anderson was already sorry for his harshness to his friend, "And you've done more than anybody on the case in getting word from Heath. I tell you, that will be a point in your favor with the law people! I say, let's reconstruct the case.—I believe that's what they term it."

"All right," Cunningham spoke eagerly. "Say, Heath told the truth, then how did it all come about?"

The Detroit police have a country club and have taken up golf. They are thinking of carrying their clubs on the beat so they can putt people in jail.

DIGESTIVE TROUBLES MAY BREAK REST

Any Sluggishness of the System, Wrong Foods, Excessive Coffee or Tea Drinking and Daytime Naps May Upset Sleep Schedule.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

One of the symptoms for which doctors frequently prescribe is inability to sleep. Fortunately most people are sensible and talk to the doctor before they begin any sort of home medication.

This is well, because the common prescription for sleeplessness is some sort of opiate. All opiates must be looked upon with suspicion. No layman has the right to prescribe for himself or for another a narcotic drug.

While drug addiction is very rarely traced to the careless use of opiates taken for their medicinal effects, nevertheless, there is a danger and no one can afford to face it. Addiction to a drug is a form of slavery almost impossible to overcome.

It is a common thing to regard sleeplessness as a symptom of worry. Of course it is, in many cases. It takes a lot of will-power to keep from worrying at night. Things look so black between midnight and three o'clock in the morning that to begin to worry at that time of night means that you will get no sleep until you get ready to get up. Then you find yourself fagged and sleepy.

Nine times out of ten sleeplessness is due to some form of indigestion. It is a common symptom of chronic constipation. The uncomfortable symptoms of indigestion and the stimulating qualities of the poisons absorbed in constipation are likely to drive sleep from the pillow.

Whenever one of my friends talks to me about sleeplessness I immediately inquire regarding his digestive apparatus. Almost always I find that he is eating the wrong things or is a victim of constipation. A good many times the constipation exists when its victim believes he has no trouble of the sort.

Having a movement of the bowels every day is no proof of the absence of constipation. This may be the removal of waste material which should have been eliminated several days before. A certain sluggishness of the bowels has delayed the passage of the waste material along the intestine.

The best way to overcome sleeplessness due to this cause is to correct the constipation. This is best done by a proper selection of foods. As a means of temporary relief petroleum oil may be found useful. A tablespoonful taken each night before retiring or a half hour before breakfast may hasten the fecal stream and carry away the waste material which is capable of generating conditions producing sleeplessness.

Excessive tea or coffee drinking may produce such symptoms as to destroy sleep. It is unwise for one who has a tendency to sleeplessness to indulge too frequently in these beverages.

Lastly, there is another factor which must not be overlooked. A good many people take a long nap in the daytime. They may doze away during the evening. One way or another they get so much sleep before going to bed that the night may be a sleepless one.

Rival Coaches

Jack Wilce (at top) and Charley Crowley, football coaches at Ohio State and Columbia Universities respectively, will send their charges against each other in one of the biggest intersectional games of the early season at New York City, Oct. 16. It will be the second of a home-and-home series, Ohio State won last year at Columbus, 9-0.

Cotton Market Has Many Ups and Downs

When Big Crop Is Forecast Price Drops—Manufactures Are Buying For Future Use.

New York, Oct. 12.—During most of the past week the cotton market was a liquidating affair, fluctuating irregularily, under the influence of evening up operation by local traders in anticipation of the semi-monthly crop forecast which pointed to a yield of 16,627,000 the largest on record.

The report was followed by a heavy selling which carried active near months below the 11½ cent level for the first time since August, 1921. Under that figure, however, active buying by trade interests developed and values subsequently recovered about one half cent from their low levels.

The increased demand from trade interests was partially influenced by the fact that cotton is unquestionably selling below its intrinsic value and partly by the belief that substantial outside financial assistance would be extended to cotton growers.

Mills already are taking advantage of the current low quotations for the staple and new accumulating stocks for future use.

Sale Average was $41.50.

In an account of the C. P. Dowis and Son sale of purebred Spotted Poland-China pigs last week, the sale average as given in the Democrat-Forum and Tribune as $21.50. It should have been $41.50.

O. B. Humphrey of Burlington Junction was a visitor yesterday at the St. Joseph livestock market.

Special Offer To Victims of Chronic Indigestion

Koch Pharmacy Says Pleasant To Take, Elixir Must Help Poor Distressed Stomachs Or Money Gladly Refunded.

You can be so distressed with gas and fullness that you think your heart is going to stop beating.

Your stomach may be so distended that your breathing is short and gaspy.

You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done?

Just one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha-Pepsin and in ten minutes the gas disappears, the pressing on the heart ceases and you can breathe deep and naturally.

Oh! What blessed relief; but why not get rid of such attacks altogether? Why have chronic indigestion at all?

Especially when Koch Pharmacy or any druggist anywhere guarantees Dare's Mentha-Pepsin, a pleasant elixir, to end indigestion, acute or chronic, or money back.—Adv.

CHILDREN'S NURSE RESUMES HER DUTIES

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time and I would not be without it in the house. As I am a children's nurse, I have to be on my feet a great deal and your medicine has helped me wonderfully. I was hardly able to do my housework when I began taking it, and now I am a strong and well woman, able to do all that and go out nursing besides. I have also used the Sanative Wash and found it beneficial."—Mrs. Gertrude L. Stewart, 103 Davis St., Greenfield, Mass.

Valuable for Weakness

"I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a valuable medicine for weakness."—Mrs. J. A. Pietsch, Box 397, Lancaster, Pa.

Hundreds of letters like these are received by the Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Grateful women from Pennsylvania to Washington, from Texas to Illinois and from Rhode Island to Nebraska say that their health has improved since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SILVERTOWNS ON YOUR CAR

What's in a Name?

After quoting statistics to show that the amount of gasoline extracted from a given amount of crude has more than doubled during the past ten years, Petroleum Age makes the following statement:

"Refiners have made remarkable strides in developing cracking processes, which development is the only thing that has kept gasoline at a reasonable price."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) discovered and developed the first commercially successful process for producing gasoline by cracking.

With a vision of what an extensive use of its discovery would mean to the people, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) gave the benefits of its scientific work to competitors, leasing to them the processes which it had discovered and developed.

This action of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) made it possible for the entire industry to unite in stretching the available crude to meet the spectacular increase in demand for gasoline, resulting from the enormous increase in the number of automobiles.

Without an extensive use of cracking processes, the demand could not have been met, and the price of gasoline, today, would have been prohibitive.

The success of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) in keeping the price of gasoline within the reach of everyone is a realization of the steadfast purpose which always has animated this organization.

Through the years, that purpose has never changed. To serve the thirty million people of the Middle West with every resource at its command, always has been the unvarying practice of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Any product bearing the name of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is of a standard grade. There is no variation, no deviation from that standard.

The consumer knows what he is getting, because the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) knows with scientific precision what it is selling —standard products of standard uniformity and standard excellence.

Through long years of consistent service, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has proved itself worthy of, and has won, the confidence of its patrons.

Never changing in its purpose to serve the people of the Middle West—never changing in its loyal attitude toward them—never changing in the high standards of the products it produces for them—has made the name of this Company a guarantee of dependability.

Christopher Columbus Strummed a Mean Guitar 'Neath the Moonlit Window of His Lady Love

New Orleans, Oct. 12.—Christopher Columbus, who sailed beyond the blue rim of the world to discover the golden Americas, was something more than a great adventurer. He also was considerable of a shiek.

The grizzled old navigator, painted for centuries as a dour man of gloom and shadows, in reality was a romantic stroller who twanged a guitar under the sleepy moon of old Castile as ardently as any youthful hero out of an old-fashioned novel.

This new light on the old explorer is given by Professor Rudolph Schuller, European linguist and ethnological savant, who came to this country to examine early American data in the library of Tulane University.

The romance of Columbus, hitherto known only to delvers in musty old libraries, is being made public by Prof. Schuller.

"—nights when Columbus, in true Spanish style, took a guitar and strummed crooning love songs beneath a balcony of old Seville."

In Old Seville.

Columbus, burning with the idea of a new route to the famed spice islands of Asia, was cooling his heels impatiently in old Seville, living on the bounty of King Ferdinand and waiting for Queen Isabella to make that famous call on the pawnbroker that would launch Columbus on his voyage of discovery.

It was Easter Week, and Seville was a city of Pageantry, with street processions and flower-bedecked floats brilliant with all the color of the church's brightest festival. Columbus mingled nightly in the gay throngs on the streets.

One night he was strolling aimlessly down a side street, dreaming of the strange, perilous journey that lay before him. Suddenly he jumped back. What had been thrown at him? A dagger? No. There had been no clash of steel on the pavement. He stooped. It was a rose.

Columbus looked up. A lace mantilla floated in the dusk on the iron balcony of a house beside him. A woman, hidden in the shadows, laughed softly. She held a fan before her face. Columbus fell in love without even seeing her face.

Serenades By Moonlight.

More nights came—nights when Columbus, in true Spanish style, took a guitar and strummed crooning love songs beneath the balcony of old Seville. And one night the fan was removed from before the face of the woman above him, and he saw the beautiful Dona Beatriz Enrique of Cordova, smiling down at him . . . . And there came a night when the barred door below the balcony swung open . . . .

A son was born to Dona Beatriz Enrique, proud lady of Castile, and Christopher Columbus, Italian adventurer seeking his fortune in a strange land. And then Columbus went to Palos and sailed beyond the sunset to everlasting fame.

Sometimes great men's sons are lost in the obscurity of history. But not so in this case. The boy, named Fernando, can be traced to a position of note. As a youngster he accompanied Columbus on one of his later voyages to the New World—the strange New World that Columbus, to the day of his death, thought was only an outlying part of Asia.

Then Fernando entered the priesthood. And finally we find him establishing the world famous library at Seville, for centuries one of the centers of European learning.

Made Other Discoveries.

That is the story that Professor Schuller reveals about Columbus.

The professor has made other discoveries about the famous old explorer, too. He has shown, for instance, that the school histories are mistaken when they say that Columbus' crews were recruited from jails and almshouses—the offscourings of the water front. On the contrary, he says, they were the pick of Spain's seamen, chosen as carefully as were the crews of Amundsen and Peary.

In the library of Tulane University, Prof. Schuller has discovered a facsimile illustration of the signature and handwriting of Columbus. He has shown that the cost of the first voyage of discovery was $5000.

But nothing that he has learned about Columbus is of more interest than the story of the great discoverer's secret romance.

Make Final Effort to Save Russell Scott

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 12.—Making one of their final legal efforts to save Russell Scott from the hangman's noose, attorneys for Scott today presented to the Supreme Court an application for a writ of supersedeas. Scott is scheduled to hang in Chicago next Friday and the court will probably hand down a decision tomorrow.

Charles Buhler spent the day in St. Joseph.

Lambs Firm; Cattle Weak. Hogs Lower

Receipts of cattle today 40,000, were more than expected, but with a large per cent of the offering stockers and feeders and a broad country demand in evidence there was no material change in prices compared with last week's decline. The few grain fed yearlings and light weight steers offered were quoted firm. Hog prices showed a further moderate decline and the general trade shows indications of making a final readjustment before the opening of the winter packing season November 1. Lambs held firm at last weeks $1.25 advance and sheep were steady.

Today's Receipts

Receipts today were 40,000 cattle, 8,000 hogs and 14,000 sheep, compared with 28,000 cattle, 6,000 hogs, and 18,000 sheep a week ago, and 43,800 cattle, 7,525 hogs and 13,475 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle

The few good corn fed cattle offered today brought stronger prices than they would have brought last week, but they were in limited supply with sales ranging from $10. to $11.25. Nothing prime was offered. Short fed and grass fat steers were steady to weak. Chicago had 13,000 northwest grass fat cattle and the market there remained weak at the full decline reported in the past two weeks. The continued liberal supply at the lake market keeps eastern buyers channels well filled. Here there were more stock and feeding cattle than fat grades, and demand from killers cared for the offerings. Cows and heifers were steady compared with last week and 25 to 50 cents under last Monday. Most of the cows sold at $4.50 to $6. and grass heifers at $6. to $7.25. Veal calves were 50 cents lower, top $13.50.

Stockers and Feeders

Receipts of stock and feeding cattle were the largest of the season and quality the best. New Mexico, Texas and Colorado contributed freely. While prices were quoted weak to 25 cents lower demand was the largest of the season, and the movement over the scales large. It is considered the most opportune time of the season to buy thin cattle.

Hogs

Hogs sold 10 to 15 cents under last weeks close and sharply lower than the high points last week which came on Tuesday. Demand was active at the decline and the offerings cleared readily. The 170 to 230 pound hogs sold $13.15 to $13.30; 230 to 260 pounds $12.75 to $13.15; 260 to 280 pounds $12.25 to $12.75; 280 to 325 pounds $11.65 to $12.25; packing sows $10.00 to $11.25 and stock hogs and pigs $12.50 to $13.50.

Sheep and Lambs

Lambs continued in active demand at last week's $1.25 advance. Receipts were not as large as a week ago, and indications are that the western runs will diminish from now on. Best western lambs today sold at $13.75 to $14.10; native lambs $12.50 to $13.50; yearlings $9.50 to $10.50; wethers $7.25 to $8.25; ewes $4.50 to $6.50; feeding lambs $12. to $13.

Horses and Mules

Last week brought a $10. to $15. decline in horses and mules. This week is opening with a stronger tone but no material recovery.

Railroads Asked to Aid With Apple Crop

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 12—Emergency freight rates to assist in moving the 1926 apple crop have been asked of two railroads at a conference at Washington and Oregon growers.

With a record apple crop, the growers face the prospect of a low price, and are asking that the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads absorb some of the cost of cleaning the apples, which is fixed by government regulations, by lowering the freight rate.

SPOOFHOUNDS TO SAVANNAH

MARYVILLE HIGH PLAYS THERE THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

NINE NEARLY FLUNK

Old Bug-bear of Athletic Coaches Worries Mentors—Eligibility Rules May Be More Rigid.

Nine members of the Spoofhound football squad came near being dropped from the list of likely candidates for the trip to Savannah Thursday to play the high school at that place, it became known today when Coach C. W. Croy learned that a number of men were flunking in one subject each. Three of the boys, members of the reserves, are ineligible to play conference football and cannot be considered for the Maryville-Savannah game, the season's big contest, Thursday.

Ineligibility, the bug-bear of all athletic coaches, is worrying coach Croy and his assistant, Hugh Graham, considerably and the two high school mentors have agreed that unless the candidates for places on the Spoofhound squad do better work in their classes more drastic eligibility rules will be put into effect. Several of the men are enrolled for only three subjects and should they be making failing grades in only one course they are not eligible for membership on the first team.

Two first team men, and letter men at that, were out of last week's line-up against Tarkio because their grades were delinquent and now, with three reserves ineligible and nine others, most of whom are regulars, flunking one subject each, the coaches have no small grievance against the boys. Students, school officials, and football fans of Maryville are heartily endorsing the coach's attitude toward ineligibility and some are advocating the more stringent rules.

"It is good that the coaches are making those boys work in their classes before they are allowed to play football," one athletic fan, a graduate of the high school said today, "the time when an athlete can loaf through his classes is just about gone because there are too many good students who have been receiving the benefit of physical education in the schools who can be developed into real players."

Members of the Spoofhound squad understand the attitude of their coaches and while they have not yet brought their grades to the proper standard the school officials say that a slight improvement in the brand of scholastic work done by the football players is somewhat better than that done three weeks ago.

Eligible and ineligible players are working out on the college field today and following the showing made today the coaches will be able to determine who will be taken to Savannah for the game there Thursday. Should the roads be in such condition as to allow the team to make the trip in cars, all men eligible to play will be taken. However, should the trip be made on the train, sixteen players will be allowed to make the journey.

Among those who stand good chances of being taken to Savannah are Curtis New, Leland Smith, Frank Nichols, Eugene Howard, George Hall, Jack Sorrie, Ben Thompson, William Alsup, James Alsup, Richard Holt, George McMurry, Frank Fisher, Victor Mumma, Stewart Bush, Kenneth Swinford, Ray Keever, Charles Kissinger, Harry Wilson, John Dooley, Jack Gray, Walter Dow, and Halbert Catterson.

Savannah is expected to be a tough bone on which the Spoofhounds expect to chew as that team has been playing some good football this season. Savannah tied Lafayette, of St. Joseph, in a 0 to 0 game a few weeks ago but lost to Benton, of St. Joseph, by a 20 to 7 score last week.

Members of the team will go to Savannah Thursday morning and will return that night.

Mrs. Emmett F. Scott went to St. Joseph, today.

CENTENARIAN DIED TODAY

WOMAN WAS PIONEER IN NODAWAY COUNTY.

TOOK OUT HOMESTEAD

Funeral Services Probably Will Be Held Thursday—Await Word From Brother.

One of the pioneer characters in the history of Nodaway county and especially that of the Immaculate Conception Parish, of which Conception is a part, was lost early today with the death of Mrs. Margaret Fagen, centenarian, at her home there. She had been ill only since last Thursday.

Mrs. Fagen, while not one of the most widely known pioneer characters of this county, was well known in and about Conception where she has lived for the last twenty years. Prior to moving to that town she lived on a farm near there.

Nearly 78 years ago Mrs. Fagen, accompanied her husband, who died more than fifty years ago, into northwest Missouri after landing in this country from Ireland. The couple took out a homestead near where Conception now is located and lived there for many years. The two knew only the life of the pioneer in this section but friends, who knew them, say their farm was well kept and they good workers.

The dead woman is survived by a brother, Matt Lane, ninety years old, of Fruita, Colo., two sons, Tom and Mike Fagen, Conception; and daughters, Miss Mary Fagen, Fruita, Colo., Mrs. Ed Hagen, Barnard, Mrs. C. W. Reidlinger, and Mrs. J. M. Stuckl, Conception.

Funeral services probably will be held Thursday morning in Conception but as yet no definite arrangements have been made.

DEMPSEY MAY TRY IT AGAIN

FORMER CHAMP TO TRAIN AT LOS ANGELES.

WILL TEST HIMSELF

If He Finds Out He Is In Good Condition, Heavyweight Boxer Will Meet All Comers.

New York, Oct. 12.—Jack Dempsey, deposed heavyweight boxing champion of the world, will fight his way back to a bout for the championship or quit the ring forever.

The defeated champion made this known in an interview given out today at his hotel here after having conferred with friends and his handlers in the recent Tunney match.

"I will take on all comers providing after two or three months training, I believe myself fit to return to the game and be as effective as I was before my three years' lay-off." Dempsey said. "I expect my legal trouble to be settled in about three weeks. I will then go to my home in Los Angeles and start training. I will work there for two or three months, boxing and doing road work. If at the end of that time I feel fit, I will start fighting.

"I will make a tour taking on all comers, good or bad. I don't expect to make any money. I may lose some, but I want to test my fighting mettle and determine if I have the stuff left."

Report "Babe" Ruth Will Get $75,000

Rumor Has It That Home-Run Slugger Will Be Tendered One-Year Contract for That Figure.

New York, Oct. 12.—According to reports being circulated here today, "Babe" Ruth will be tendered a contract for next season calling for $75,000, the highest salary paid any man in baseball, whether player, manager or league president. The contract will be for one year only, it was said. Ruth's last contract, which was for three years, expired September 26. It called for $52,000 a season.

France More Hopeful After Winston Speech

Believes More Lenient Debt Terms Will Be Granted—Sees Change in U. S. Viewpoint.

Paris, Oct. 12.—France sees hope for more lenient terms in the settlement of her debt to the United States in the speech made yesterday at Kansas City by assistant Secretary of Treasury Winston. The foreign office pointed out today that Winston's speech is the first American official recognition made publicly of the heavy taxation in France and also that France has to sustain the cost of the restoration of the devastated areas.

The foreign office believes that Winston's speech indicates a change in the point of view on the part of the American government which may lead to more lenient debt terms.
